MOTION

SPECIAL 7

On October 16, 2025, LAist reported that the City Attorney Hydee Feldstein Soto and her office had moved to lift the September 2025 injunction against the Los Angeles Police Department for use of force against journalists. This was done without consultation of the City Council as the Legislative body for the City.

In Fiscal Year 2024-25, the City paid over $68 million in liability costs as a result of actions taken by the LAPD, resulting in bodily harm to journalists and protestors. Since protests of the Federal Government's immigration enforcement activities in the City grew in June 2025, at least 60 claims have been made against the LAPD by protestors and journalists for use of force. Lifting this injunction does not further the City's mission of keeping Angelenos safe while putting the City's stressed finances in further jeopardy by creating additional liability and claims against the City.

Journalism is under attack in this nation - whether it be the revocation of access by President Trump to the Pentagon Press Corps this week, or the rapid consolidation of media outlets by corporations - and our local press is critical to keeping Angelenos informed. Any attempt at spending precious City resources on overturning what Judge Hernán Vera of the Central District Court of California has deemed "unlawful force against members of the media" is a waste of City resources and against the will of Angelenos at large.

One of Los Angeles' biggest threats to public safety is the ongoing terror and kidnapping campaign of our neighbors by the Trump Administration, and the City must focus its resources on protecting our communities, not the further degradation of First Amendment rights and the timely need for a free press.

I THEREFORE MOVE that the Council determine, as provided in Section 54954.2(b)(2) of the Government Code, and pursuant to Rule 23 of the Rules of the City Council, that there is a need to take immediate action on this matter and that the need for the action came to the attention of the City Council subsequent to the posting of the agenda for today's Council meeting;

I FURTHER MOVE that the City Council DIRECT the City Attorney withdraw the motion to lift the injunction;

I FURTHER MOVE that the City Council REQUEST the City Attorney present in an emergency closed session of Council regarding the motion to lift the injunction in order to obtain guidance from, and give updates to the City Council;

I FURTHER MOVE that the City Council REQUEST the City Attorney, with support from the Chief Legislative Analyst, report back in 30 days with information on all proactive litigation the Office has moved forward without explicit direction from the City Council or Mayor since July 1, 2024, to date.

MOTION

Menopause is a natural stage of life for millions of women in the United States. With increased life expectancy, the average woman may spend 40% of her life in some phase of menopause, and approximately 1.3 million women in the U.S. enter menopause each year.¹

Menopause is a physiological transition with more than 80 recognized physical, cognitive, and emotional symptoms, and 80% of women² experience some combination of these effects. These symptoms can significantly impact the daily activities of these mid-life employees, who represent 20%³ of the U.S. workforce, with negative impacts on job satisfaction and organization-wide productivity.⁴

Despite its prevalence, menopause remains stigmatized. A 2021 study published by the Society for Women's Health found that one in three employees concealed their symptoms at work, citing fear of judgment and general stigma around the topic. According to that same research, one in three menopausal people considered reducing their workload because of their menopause symptoms, and two in five employees either considered finding or found a new job.⁵

As an employer, the City of Los Angeles aspires to cultivate a diverse and inclusive workforce. Recognizing the impact of menopause on our city staff and fostering a supportive and accommodating environment is essential to delivering on that promise.

I THEREFORE MOVE that the Personnel Department, with support from other departments, the Chief Legislative Analyst and the City Administrative Officer, report back within 120 days on (1) how the City's leave and benefits policies can accommodate people experiencing menopause, including but not limited to ensuring menopause is made explicit in the City's allowance for sick leave ; (2) options to mandate training for supervisors on how to support employees experiencing menopause, and to make available menopause workplace resource guides for all city employees; and (3) practical workplace solutions and securing additional workplace accommodations, such as desktop fans or lighter-weight uniforms, to be made available to all employees as needed.

I FURTHER MOVE that the Civil and Human Rights + Equity Department, in partnership with the Commission on the Status of Women, (1) convene roundtables to be informed by city employees from a variety of career paths with lived experience of menopause, (2) research how other cities globally (including London and Melbourne) have taken action to better support employees and residents experiencing menopause, and (3) report back within 120 days, and iteratively thereafter, on how the City can better support their needs, as well as recommendations for fostering ongoing dialogue city-wide about menopause and its impacts; and (4) report back on the actions required for the City of Los Angeles to be officially accredited as a Menopause-Friendly Workplace.

ARTS, PARKS, LIBRARIES, AND COMMUNITY ENRICHMENT

MOTION

For the past several years, the Department of Animal Services (DAS) has been experiencing persistent overcrowding and underfunding in its shelters. Despite these challenges, the DAS continues to be responsible for the sheltering, care, and enrichment of the animals residing within their facilities. Even with six shelters located throughout the City including: Chesterfield Square in South Los Angeles, East Valley in Van Nuys, Harbor in San Pedro, North Central in Lincoln Heights, West Los Angeles, and West Valley in Chatsworth, the geographical distribution of these shelters continues to pose challenges for families seeking to visit for adoptions.

In efforts to mitigate this challenge, the DAS utilizes Pet Fairs. These events transport a limited number of animals to various locations, including City parks, with the goal of finding them homes. Such efforts have demonstrated to be efficient in securing homes for dogs, cats, and rabbits. According to the DAS' July 2025 Woof Statistics report, a total of 2,125 pets were adopted. This included 1,071 dogs, 785 cats, 203 kittens, and 66 rabbits and small pets. Furthermore, 262 animals were placed into foster care, 326 pets were reunited with their owners, and 1,486 animals were transferred to rescue partners.

Additionally, City Council offices host several community events throughout the year and invite DAS to have a presence in order to elevate the chances of pet adoptions for the department. However, at a previous CD6 Pet Fair, DAS only had the capacity to bring 6 pets to be considered for adoption. To further increase adoption rates and ensure that the distance from a shelter does not discourage families from adopting pets, the City should explore expanding the DAS' capacity to host and participate at more Pet Fair events. Increasing capacity could look like investments in the large vehicles with built-in kennels utilized for transporting pets from shelters, which tend to be custom-built animal transport trucks, ranging from cargo vans to motor home vehicles that can hold anywhere from 15 - 50 pets.

I THEREFORE MOVE that the City Council instruct the Department of Animal Services with the assistance of the City Administrative Officer to report on the costs needed to invest in large transport vehicles and personnel needed including potential funding sources to expand the Department's ability to host and participate in more Pet Fair events throughout the City, including potential participation in community resource fairs, health fairs, and other city sponsored events.

PUBLIC WORKS

Kent Wong, former director of the UCLA Labor Center from 1991-2023 and professor of labor studies and Asian American studies, died on October 8, 2025, leaving a legacy of lives and communities strengthened and unified through his tireless commitment to justice. As a fifth-generation Chinese American, Kent's heritage and experiences influenced his work to bring immigrant voices to the forefront of union strategy. After graduating from the People's College of Law in 1984, Kent became the first staff attorney for the Asian Pacific American Legal Center for Southern California—now known as Asian Americans Advancing Justice—where he developed programs to serve the needs of Asian American workers, later serving as staff attorney for SEIU Local 660.

Throughout his career, Kent played a pivotal role in creating multiple major equity-focused organizations. In 1992, he founded the Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance (APALA), AFL-CIO, the first and only national organization of Asian American, Native Hawaiian, and Pacific Islander workers. The following year, he founded the Tourism Industry Development Council, now the Los Angeles Alliance for a New Economy (LAANE). In 1996, he co-founded Strategic Actions for a Just Economy (SAJE), an organization focused on economic justice and tenants' rights, and in 2000, he helped launch the United Association for Labor Education (UALE), uniting labor educators to promote labor education programs in schools across the U.S. and Canada.

In Kent's early advocacy, he recognized that the labor movement stretches beyond national borders, believing that global worker solidarity strengthened the movement. In 2007, Kent led a historic delegation of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor to China, forming the first-ever sister-city relations between a U.S. central labor council and the Shanghai and Beijing labor councils.

Kent was renowned across Los Angeles and the nation for his lifelong advocacy on labor and immigrant rights. Over his 32 years as director of the UCLA Labor Center—and, later, project director of labor and community partnerships—he transformed the center into a groundbreaking hub for research and leadership development supporting workers and immigrants. As a founding leader of the UCLA Labor Studies department, he anchored the major's popular introductory course, taught thousands of students over three decades, and developed and co-taught "Nonviolence and Social Movements" alongside his longtime mentor, the late civil rights icon Rev. James Lawson, Jr.

Under Kent's directorship, the UCLA Labor Center became a model of innovation and impact. He helped grow the organization, expanding staff from three to 42 staff members, and oversaw the development of the Re: Work research justice team, the Dream Resource Center, the Community Scholars policy research program, and the first-of-its-kind Los Angeles Black Worker Center.

In 2021, with the support of State Senator María Elena Durazo, Kent's advocacy secured $15 million from the California state legislature to establish a permanent home for the UCLA Labor Center. The funding allowed the Center to purchase and renovate the MacArthur Park building it had rented for 19 years, a historic space once home to the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union and located within walking distance of more than 20 labor union offices. The building was later renamed in honor of Rev. James Lawson Jr..

A year later, Kent advanced his vision to build lasting infrastructure for labor research and education, leading the statewide expansion of the UCLA Labor Center's model to seven additional University of California campuses. He also championed its global impact by helping establish labor centers at three Mexican universities.

In his last two years as project director of labor and community partnerships, Kent continued to support the movement by bridging collaborations between the center and community partners. He helped facilitate a landmark nonviolence training for 1,400 people at the L.A. Convention Center on July 10, 2025, hosted by the LA County Federation of Labor. He supported the Senate Resolution 38, an effort to incorporate a nonviolence curriculum into

I THEREFORE MOVE that the City Council INSTRUCT the Department of Transportation to fabricate and install a permanent ceremonial sign designating the intersection of W. 7th St and S. Park View St, by the UCLA Labor Center in MacArthur Park, as "Kent Wong Square," on Saturday, November 15, 2025.

I FURTHER MOVE that the City Council AUTHORIZE the Department of Transportation to make technical corrections or clarifications to effectuate the intent of this motion.
